Investing in young people and our community

A community based work project under the Matariki strategy is set to give young people a pathway to employment.

Who is eligible?

The project aims to actively include young people who experience health conditions or disability in project based work where they can develop; employment skills, experience and on the job training.

What projects are eligible?

Projects can be up to 26 weeks with the expectation that this experience will assist young people to progress towards sustainable employment.

The projects will:

- be for community or environmental good
- cannot displace a worker
- be over and above business as usual

Participating project sponsors will need to:

- Identify community projects
- Apply to participate in the programme
- Organise the project
- Provide materials
- Provide a safe and healthy work environment
- Work with the partners to move young people into work.

What support is available?

The partners will stay in touch with both the participant and project sponsor to make sure everything is running smoothly during their placement and there is a pathway to sustainable employment.

Mentoring and support will be provided to participants.
